Message from the Principal

Dear families, parishioners, and friends,
The beautiful sunshine set the perfect backdrop for our vibrant and colourful book week parade on Monday morning which provoked joy, smiles, and fun all while we hope promoting the virtues and advantages of reading. Book week highlights the value of reading and encourages us to develop a stronger interest in literature and to read! How wonderful it was to share this experience with so many parents and family members attending! Thank you to our FOSSALS, Mia, and Nicholas, and to Ms. Shannon for organising this enjoyable and creative day.

The celebrations continued on Tuesday when we welcomed over 86 fathers, grandparents, and significant people for afternoon tea followed by a liturgy and some interactive games in the classrooms. The vibe was a happy one which we think you will sense from the photos further on.

As you know, next week is production week! Your children have been putting a lot of effort into fine-tuning their items and are keen to share their performances with you. Make sure that you have your tickets booked and arrive on time. We know that the changed routine and added excitement can be tiring therefore we want to start promptly and therefore finish as per the schedule.

Please read over the information shared via Operoo and email your child's teacher or Mrs. Byrne if you have any wonderings.

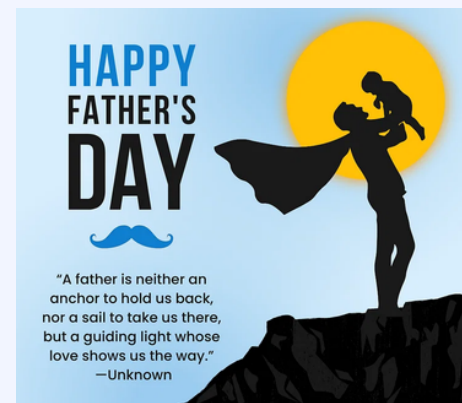

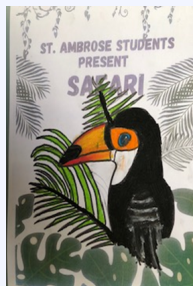

Last Sunday our second group of students made their First Eucharist.

The celebration of the First Eucharist is a sacred and important moment on a long journey of faith development.

Together with Baptism and Confirmation, it opens the door to full membership of the Christian community. It was a prayerful ceremony and we thank Fr. Martin, parents, and teachers for preparing the children for this day.

We congratulate:

Joel W, Sofia X, Sonny B, Amity C, Hugh F, Nicholas G, Isla N, Edward R, Tyler T and Tom L. They will receive their certificates next week.

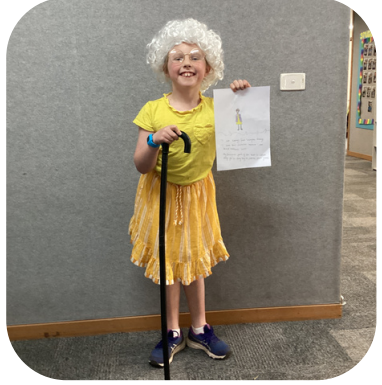

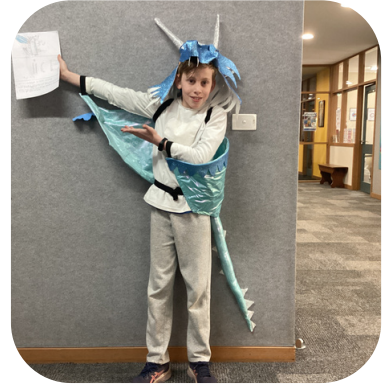

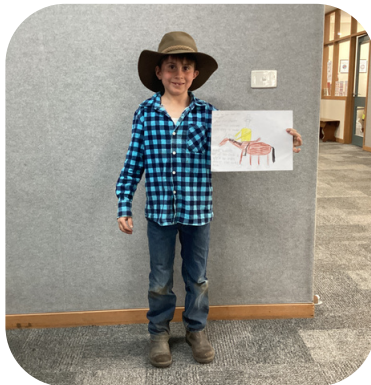

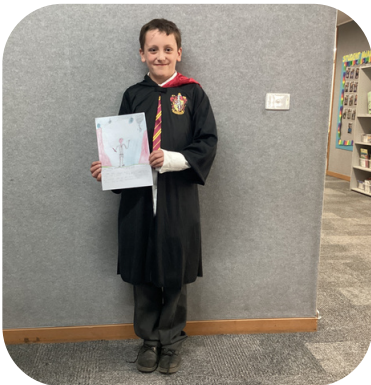

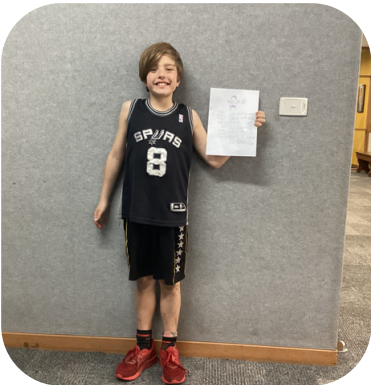

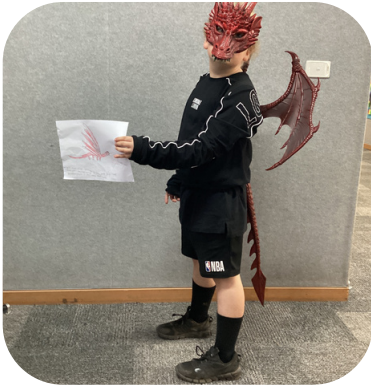

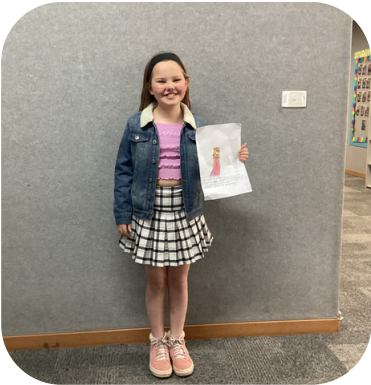

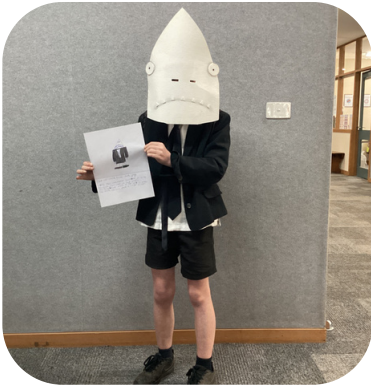

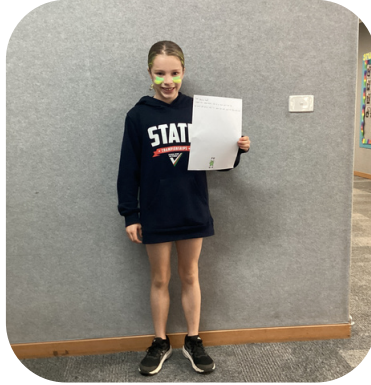

We will publish a full newsletter next week. In this bulletin, we are sharing photos of our book week, Father's Day, and Eucharist celebrations. We hope that you enjoy them!
